

15:30:39 From Doug Antczak : vet college held classes today

15:34:35 From Paul Ginsparg : yes 100% for McClintock

15:34:37 From Buz Barstow : Charlie: FYI, she has a shed!

15:34:44 From Buz Barstow : Which is kind of a slap in the face.

15:35:08 From Bruce Lewenstein (he/him) : There's a plant-science adjunct faculty who has done biographical work on McClintock.

15:35:19 From Bruce Lewenstein (he/him) : The shed is historical -- it's where she did her work.

15:35:37 From Thomas Björkman : Yes for McClintock. Buzz: it was her actual shed, so we can't exactly change that fact.

15:35:48 From Buz Barstow : Haha, didn't actually know that!

15:35:53 From Chris Schaffer : Fantastic idea, Charlie.

15:36:07 From Peter Wolczanski : We've (CCB) have tried to get something like this for our Nobel Prize winner Roald Hoffmann, but have been repeated stonewalled by financial considerations. Shameful.

15:36:11 From Maria Gandolfo Nixon : Lee Kass is the author of that book

15:36:38 From Bruce Lewenstein (he/him) : @Maria, thanks for reminder of Kass's name!

15:42:53 From Paul Ginsparg : <https://www.hcn.org/issues/52.4/indigenous-affairs-education-land-grab-universities>

15:43:40 From Michael Thonney : Isn't the reason that Cornell gained the most from the Land Grant because the Founders waited to sell the land until the value went up dramatically?

15:44:20 From Frederic Gleach : Yes, that's a big part of it.

15:45:10 From Erik Born : The AIISP blog is a fantastic resource to share with colleagues: <https://blogs.cornell.edu/cornelluniversityindigenousdispossession/>

15:45:47 From Michael Tomlan : The sale of the land had more to do with the need for cash as other subsidies, including those from the State of New York, were terminated.

15:46:34 From George Frantz CRP : See a detailed history in "The Wisconsin pine lands of Cornell University" Paul Wallace Gates. 1943. Available now through CU Press

16:00:40 From Sarah Murray : Thank you Jolene, Eric, and Kurt

16:00:47 From Ariel Ortiz Bobea : ^

16:06:03 From Buz Barstow : Hi Jolene and Kurt, many thanks for this.

16:06:17 From bethmilles : Yes--thank you so much!!

16:06:24 From Elizabeth Lamb : +1

16:06:29 From Bruce Lewenstein (he/him) : 1

16:06:34 From Connie Yuan : +1

16:06:41 From Ailong Ke : +1

16:06:42 From Elizabeth Lamb : And thanks Buz for a good question

16:06:44 From Maria Gandolfo Nixon : Thank you for sharing Jolene and Kurt. I learned a lot!

16:06:45 From Neema Kudva : +1

16:06:49 From Mary Jo Dudley : +1

16:06:49 From Ariel Ortiz Bobea : +1

16:13:48 From K.E. von Wittelsbach : By "an advisor" do you mean "an academic advisor" or whoever advises the student?

16:13:58 From K.E. von Wittelsbach : ... In life....

16:14:33 From Chris Schaffer : First change kind of sets up a game of chicken between the student and instructor. Will the instructor give a U for the cheating? If not, student should stay with S/U. If so, switching to a letter grade is better, unless the instructor will give an F? Could we suggest instructors be up front with students in these discussions about grading options?

16:15:11 From K.E. von Wittelsbach : Quite, Chris.

16:15:44 From Michael Thonney : Agree with Chris.

16:17:39 From Richard Bensel : I recognize Chris's point but wonder if enabling a student who has admitted cheating to choose the best option for themselves is consistent with what is, at bottom enforcement of a honor code.

16:20:51 From Richard Bensel : I agree with Chris on "encouragement" but not a "requirement,,,"

16:26:31 From Courtney Roby : Absolutely agree with Neema.

16:26:47 From Joanie Mackowski : thanks for bringing this up, Neema-- the different attitudes of faculty about academic integrity

16:27:00 From Ariel Ortiz Bobea : +1

16:27:07 From Jery Stedinger : Could we change the situation a little so that IF the student was taking a course S/U, the professor would specify what action would be taken if the student stayed with S/U, and what action would be taken for a grade instead. I think it gets rid of the games a little.

16:27:30 From Thomas Björkman : Thanks Neema for speaking frankly about cheating as a rot that harms our intellectual community, but too often goes unaddressed.

16:28:02 From David Delchamps : Sounds reasonable, Jery.. I Will take this to EPC.

16:28:05 From Frederic Gleach : The problem of the process is also particularly acute for visiting faculty, who may not be available to pursue through the process.

16:28:09 From Chris Schaffer : @Jery Yes. Perfect.

16:28:23 From Courtney Roby : Jery, I have just sat through a hearing where a student played games with exactly that issue.

16:28:29 From Courtney Roby : It's very tricky.

16:29:21 From Paul Ginsparg : Martha if you miss Schwarz auditorium, come to my class Tu/Th 9:55-11:10

16:29:37 From Harold Hodes : How much of a problem has it been to find witnesses for hearings? Is this a problem for small departments, since there are few colleagues available to serve? In that case, why not get witnesses outside of one's own department -- perhaps there could be a mechanism for that. Or is this a problem in a significant number of non-small departments? In that case, I guess that we need to make some changes.

16:31:12 From David Delchamps : Harold, EPC members didn't perceive finding witnesses as posing big problems. Departments with lots of cases, e.g. CS, apparently have difficulties.

16:32:52 From Neema Kudva : The bigger issue from our 'listening sessions' was faculty who did not take up the integrity issue at all because of advice from senior colleagues, for instance, that hearings are onerous

16:33:18 From David Delchamps : Exactly, Neema.

16:33:47 From Chris Schaffer : Congratulations, @Paul!

16:35:25 From Buz Barstow : Congratulations @Paul!

16:42:19 From chekitan : Question for Martha: Given the 'crisis' arising from us being labeled a leading 'land-grab' university, prompted by a colleague's question about what a 'win' looks like in 5-10-20-100 years, could we turn this crisis into an opportunity by becoming the world's preeminent university for the discovery, instruction and engagement on the past, present and future of indigenous peoples all over the world, to honor the tribes dislocated from the lands that we and others now occupy.

16:42:23 From Chris Schaffer : Update on School of Public Policy, please.

16:46:16 From Chelsea Specht : @chekitan - Great question and vision

16:47:25 From Buz Barstow : Thanks @chekitan!

16:49:08 From Carl Franck : Thanks for all President Pollack!

16:49:34 From Buz Barstow : Thanks President Pollack!

16:50:09 From Sara Hernandez : To understand more about this issue, see the fact sheet Proposed Regulation on the "Change of Admission Period of F, J, and I Nonimmigrants from Duration of Status" developed by the Presidents' Alliance and the Center for Immigrants' Rights Clinic at Penn State Law School: <https://www.presidentsalliance.org/fact-sheet-proposed-regulation-on-the-change-of-admission-period-of-f-j-and-i-nonimmigrants-from-duration-of-status/>

16:54:36 From David Delchamps : Will the admin encourage more in-person instruction next spring using data about safety, low probability of transmission in classes, etc.? Seems many faculty members aren't thinking quantitatively about this.

16:58:26 From Mark Lewis : I am just back, so I apologize if you have answered this. If there is a COVID-19 vaccine available, would you consider making it mandatory for students?

16:58:27 From Paul Ginsparg : If you travel over thanksgiving, stay away from the white house

16:58:39 From Kate Bronfenbrenner : I am concerned about the number of students taking online classes living off campus planning to stay in Ithaca during the winter. Are there any plans for them

16:59:41 From Elizabeth Lamb : thanks!

16:59:43 From bethmilles : Thank you!

16:59:46 From Maria Gandolfo Nixon : Thank you Martha, we highly appreciate your answers!

17:00:05 From Tracy Stokol : Thanks Charlie

17:02:10 From David Delchamps : IMHO preponderance is rarely a good evidence standard.

17:02:20 From Carl Franck : Thanks Charlie!

17:12:14 From Thomas Björkman : At the last meeting we heard that naming the Law School had a $100 million price tag. Presumably an auditorium is less, but a lot. Is that the financial hindrance to a Hoffman Auditorium?

17:12:26 From Carl Franck : Great idea Peter

17:13:03 From Buz Barstow : Peter, great idea about Roald. Would love to do something for him.

17:13:04 From Michael Thonney : @Peter My Cornell Classics Major daughter loved taking chemistry from Roald Hoffmann.

17:13:24 From Jolene Rickard : Thank you for the opportunity to discuss the land grab issues. I hope that action can follow. Jolene

17:13:47 From Buz Barstow : Hi Jolene, it was really good to hear from you.

17:13:48 From Neema Kudva : We hope so too! Thank you Jolene and to Kurt and Eric as well.

17:14:14 From Buz Barstow : Pete: Roald's quantum chemistry class was one of the biggest influences on my grad career.

17:14:24 From Kathy Dimiduk - MTEI : Would it make sense to name one of the dorms from an Indigenous people perspective, would that be respectful or not fit their culture

17:14:34 From Chris Schaffer : @Peter I would support nominating Roald Hoffmann to this committee for North campus residence names.
